What it is

The Youth Executive Council is the peak leadership body of Aletheia Australia: young people aged 14 to 25 from across Australia who co-design our strategy, programs and expansion. Members advise on our direction, co-design resources, lead teams and represent youth perspectives with partners and decision-makers.

Why it matters

“Designed for youth, by youth” only means something if young people hold real decisions. The Council makes sure the people Aletheia serves are the ones steering it.

What members do

- ✦ Set priorities and review new programs and resources before they launch
- ✦ Lead or support a team: research, resource development, design, outreach, events or communications
- ✦ Represent Aletheia at events, panels and consultations
- ✦ Mentor volunteers and help grow the community

What members get

Everything that comes with sitting on an organisation’s peak leadership body: real decision-making, leadership and governance experience, training in health literacy and advocacy, references, and a network of young changemakers.

Who it’s for

Young people aged 14 to 25 across Australia who care about youth health, from any background. No experience needed.

Where it’s at

Applications are open on a rolling basis and are assessed on quality, Aletheia’s current needs and team fit.

Health education, not medical advice. We acknowledge the Wurundjeri Woi-wurrung people of the Kulin Nation, where Aletheia was founded. Sovereignty was never ceded.
